From The Watch Tower

By DR. G. GEORGE FOX

● Poland is trying to whip up a lot of sympathy in America. It will probably succeed in getting more than it deserves. Men forget individual treacheries, how much more do they forget national misdeeds! But the countries against which these are committed remember their history. Russia will never forget Poland's action during Russia's temporary setback — nor will

Benes forget her stab to Czechoslovakia.

The whole Polish picture, so far as the Jews are concerned, is not good. Besides the known anti-Semitism in the London Polish circles, a good deal of it has been carried over into the Polish army. If the statement that there are no Jews in the Middle East army is true the reason is anti-Semitism. If it is true that the Jews in Colonel Berling's army number 15 per cent, it is because there is little or no anti-Semitism in the Polish army working under the Russians. We have not been able to ascertain whether Colonel Berling is a Jew or not.

● The difference in the attitude between the armies of Colonel Berling and those of General Sosnowski and General Anders reflects the difference towards the Jewish Poles. The general condition of the Jewish people is not of the best. In Poland's appeal to England and the United States, nothing is apparently said about the question of the disposition of the Jewish problem. But the national organizations which are minding the affairs of our people might make some kind of diplomatic inquiry into the attitude of our country, as it concerns itself with a free Poland, and its attitude towards the Jews.

Two things are in mind. One is that there will be Jews who will return to Poland after conditions become normal. This is certainly indicated by the presence of Jewish soldiers in one of the Polish armies. The other is the presence of Polish anti-Semites in places where their dirty work against the Polish Jews may become significant.

If the Four Freedoms and the talk about justice for the minorities is not just simple cant, our State Department ought to be informed of the results of the Endeks and other anti-Semites in pre-war Poland, and of the threat that these pogromistic and unjust activities will again become dominant in the Polish state. An independent Poland must be a free-for-all-Poland. We are skeptical about the Polish anti-Semites. A real promise at least ought to be exacted from the Polish Committee in Exile, that anti-Semitism will not be permitted in peace-time. In respect to the treatment of Jews, we are inclined to accept Russia's verdict. She has all but eliminated anti-Semitism from her social life. We say "all but" because there must be some hidden anti-Jewish feeling among its inhabitants, but it remains hidden. And this is more than other nations can boast of.

● Some months ago we commented upon the un-Americanism of Stephens College, a girls' school which has a strict quota for Jewish students. We stated that the attitude was undemocratic and unsocial, and that it encouraged anti-Semitism and restriction of a bad character. Some eight Jewish girls in and around Chicago, students of Stephens, came back at us with a letter of protest informing us that we were wrong, unjust and misinformed. There was no prejudice at Stephens and no quota. One of these girls even said that if there were, it was the fault of a Jewish student who refused to do some insignificant thing.

Within the last two weeks, two girls of fine and outstanding Jewish families were refused at Stephens because of the fact that their "Jewish quota" was filled. In one case, the refusal was embarrassing even to its Chicago representative, who after visiting the family and congratulating the mother upon her daughter's registering at Stephens, turned very red and apologetic when the mother happened, just by the merest chance, to ask whether there would be any objection to the fact that the young lady was of Jewish parentage.

The representative did not think that the name was "Jewish" and therefore assumed that the family was not. But he did apologize for not being able to accept the candidate.

In the other case, the embarrassment was avoided by the mother's asking over the telephone whether Jewish girls were admitted to Stephens. She wanted a registration blank for her daughter. The representative informed her that he could save her the trouble of filling out a blank, because their "Jewish quota" was filled.

Eight Jewish girls—loyal to their college as they ought to be—please take notice!

● In a recent interview, Lord Strabolgi, referring in Parliament to some matter connected with the liberation of English Fascists, made the statement that it was not generally known and the English did not publicize the matter enough—that 30,000 Jews were fighting with the Eighth army in northern Africa. And they were very good soldiers.

Letters to the Editor

The Sentinel invites letters from its readers. It welcomes honest expressions of opinion, whether or not they agree with its editorial policy. Initials or pen names will be used if requested, but the Editor must know the names and addresses of the writer. The Editor reserves the right to shorten letters.

To the Editor:

When at the close of the Moscow Conference the joint statement by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin was issued pledging punishment of German atrocities wherever they occurred, the whole world was clearly informed that the crimes of Hitler's brutalized soldiers against the peoples of Europe—including the Jews—would be duly punished by the inhabitants of the territories where the crimes were committed.

And the whole world rejoiced. For it knows that punishment must be meted out if such crimes against persons—including the Jews—are to be stopped. It remained for Mr. Ben Hecht, writing ads paid for by the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe, to seize this occasion to fling at Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin the reckless slander that they were without regard for the safety of the Jewish people at the hands of the Nazis.

Came the Kharkov trials. The Russians demonstrated that the statement issued at the Moscow Conference meant what it said. Three Nazi murderers and a degenerate Russian traitor were duly hanged by the neck. An electric shock went through the Gestapo.

Stories seeping through from the underground and conveyed in letters found on the bodies of German soldiers give news that some of Hitler's hired thugs are beginning to reconsider. It is too late now to save the lives of those who are dead, but the electric shock of the Kharkov trials has already lightened the blows on the backs of the people—including the Jews—in German-occupied territories.

Comes now Mr. Morris Levinson in the Sentinel of January 6—still unable to see that the slanders of Ben Hecht and the Emergency Committee against Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin were slanders against men who more than any others have led the struggle against the worst enemies of all people—including the Jews—who love humanity, freedom and progress.

As a gentile I do not wish to enter certain aspects of the controversy, but I should think that everyone—including especially the Jews—would resent this attack on the leaders of the war on Hitlerism, among them the Supreme Commander-in-Chief of the Red Army, which is responsible for rescuing nine-tenths of the Jews who so far have been saved from Hitler.

Yours sincerely,

William Card

Executive Director, Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Dear Mr. Fishbein:

We are happy to inform you that the soldiers vote conference, held this past Sunday, was highly successful, both in attendance and in program, and we are confident it will stimulate many activities in the coming days to help assure the enactment of the Lucas-Green bill in Congress.

We are enclosing copies of the two main resolutions adopted by the Conference.

Two hundred and fifty delegates and individual participants attended from trade unions, youth organizations, civic groups, and colleges.

A Continuations Committee representing all groups present was elected to carry on the work of the Conference.

The staff of American Youth for Democracy has asked me to express to all those who endorsed the Conference in advance, our profound appreciation for your cooperation in helping to make this Conference a success.

With our very best wishes, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Robert Kirkwood,
Chairman.

WESTBROOK PEGLER GIVES US SOME BAD ADVICE!

In his column last Saturday, "the world's most unpopular columnist," who has never overlooked an opportunity to attack the administration, the United Nations, labor, the Negro people, and on several occasions (by subtle innuendo, at least) we Jews, dons the garb of a well-meaning friend to offer us some advice on how to fight anti-Semitism. Referring to the bills introduced in the New York legislature and pending in Congress to punish individuals who promote racial and religious hatred, Pegler says: "Both are unwise and more likely to provoke, than to abate, such propaganda because attempts to enforce them would surely raise important questions of freedom of speech and of the press. Truth is a good defense and if a propagandist should present truths about individuals in a hateful way, artfully calculated to arouse hatred of a whole group, we would simply have to acquit him. Opinion also is privileged so such efforts seem not only futile but dangerous to their own purpose."

That anti-Semitism today is the proven tool of the Axis' 5th column, energetically working to destroy national unity and to disrupt the war effort, is of no importance to this arch cynic, self-confessed reactionary, foe of everything democratic. Do you think, Mr. Pegler, from a purely military view that the morale of the 500,000 Jewish boys, now serving alongside their fellow Americans to protect the nation against the Fascists who would destroy us, is improved by the knowledge that their sisters and mothers are being beaten up on the streets of Boston, New York, and Chicago, their synagogues desecrated, while we calmly sit back and hide behind the false mantle of "privileged opinion?" Doesn't it seem strange that so many anti-administration, anti-United Nations, anti-Negro, anti-labor, anti-Semitic people—Congressmen Hoffman, Rankin, Senator Reynolds, Gerald P. Smith, Elizabeth Dilling, Joe McWilliams, etc., feel the same way about outlawing anti-Semitism? Not that we infer you are deliberately anti-Semitic, but scratch an anti-Semite and you will usually find he is an anti-everything-good. The war comes first, Mr. Pegler, and in case you haven't heard, it isn't the Roosevelts, Great Britain, China, Russia, organized labor and the people we are fighting. It is Hitler and the Japs!

OVER THE TOP IN THE 4TH WAR BOND DRIVE

So much has already been written and said about the campaign for extra bonds officially launched last Tuesday that nothing more need be added. The slogan, "Let's All Back The Attack," speaks for itself. These are invasion dollars we will be giving. Anyday now our sons and brothers, husbands and sweethearts will be swarming into Hitler's Europe. The great day of liberation for millions of enslaved people is near at hand.

But we Jews, who have suffered more than any other from Nazi barbarism, have an additional score to settle. The brutal beasts who callously murdered three million of our kinsmen in cold blood, defiled our women and children, must be made to pay for their hideous crimes. Every dollar we lend buys another bullet for some wretched Nazi heart for the great day soon to come.

Our record thus far indicates that Chicago Jewry is well aware of its special interest in the bond drive. Mrs. Louis L. Mann, chairman of the Treasury Department's Jewish Committee, reports that so far Jewish organizations of Chicago and Cook County have purchased more than seventy million dollars worth of bonds. Hadassah is out for a million dollar quota; B'nai B'rith is buying a fleet of bombers; Anshe Emet, having already raised two and one-half million, is now out for a hospital airplane; the American Jewish Congress has a drive of its own fully planned.

This is as it should be. Let the anti-Semites rave. The Jews of America are giving an unparalleled example of patriotism in this war. We need not take a back seat for anyone.

"Let 'em have it! Let's all back the attack." Over the top in the 4th War Bond Drive!

A PLAY YOU MUSTN'T MISS!

In these days of newsprint shortage seldom does space permit The Sentinel to comment editorially on a "mere" play, because with everything sublimated to the war effort only those news items important to hastening Victory are considered vital enough for these columns.

Therefore, in urging everyone to see "Tomorrow the World," now completing its third record month at the Selwyn, we feel that we are fully in line with our policy of "Everything for Victory." For while "Tomorrow the World" is in itself good theater, complete with superb acting by Elissa Landi, Paul McGrath, and the "Wonder Kids," Dickie Tyler and Joan Shepard, excellent staging, and intense dramatic content throughout—in addition it offers the audience a never-to-be-forgotten lesson as to what life under Nazism would be like, and what our stakes are in winning or losing this war. We have all read and seen, during the past ten years, countless evidence of what the Beasts of Berlin are like. "Tomorrow the World," using the medium of a Nazified child, does it with a sense of realism that makes it the must-drama of the year. Several rabbis have already used the play as texts for their sermon.

Clubs and organizations could well utilize theater parties to the Selwyn as a means of providing their members with an opportunity for not only enjoying fine theater, but also for deepening their understanding of the importance of all the "win the war" activities in which they are now actively engaged.

I Saw Their Faces

By J. L. TELLER

HERE are pen-point sketches of the men indicted on charges that they had conspired with the enemy to overthrow the government of the United States. All of these persons waved the American flag, while many of them had already secretly pledged allegiance to the Swastika, and had dreams of embellishing the Stars and Stripes of our democracy with the crooked cross of Nazism. I knew some of these people back in 1939 and earlier still when my assignment as a newspaperman was to cover Nazi meetings and to make a survey of the extent of anti-Semitic activity in New York City. Almost all of the indicted, at one time or another, made flying visits to New York.

Yorkville's Valentino

Take Joe McWilliams, for instance. Handsome Joe. He appeared out of apparently nowhere back in 1938. Impeccably dressed in cheap suits, with a neatly-tucked white 'kerchief peeping from his breast pocket, he emerged on Yorkville's streets haranguing crowds on street corners.

He was a novelty to the spinsters, hysterical adolescents and frustrated hausfraus who then composed the Nazi movement in this country. Most of their leaders were gruff, bull-necked, red-nosed Teutons. The handsome men of the movement had long ago disappeared. Handsome Dr. Ignatz Griebel, chief of Nazi espionage in the United States of America, was kidnapped or had escaped to Germany. Fritz Gissibl, chief of the Friends of New Germany, later the German American Bund, was already at the time, an aide-de-campe to Julius Streicher in Bavaria. Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German American Bund, wasn't a too-striking figure, although he also had his amours. It was the right moment for Joe McWilliams, not too Aryan looking, not too boringly Teutonic. Little did his followers know of his past as a Communist and a habitue of Union Square, New York's Hyde Park. And Joe soon became the "Schoener Adolph" of some Park Avenue women, as well as of Yorkville bar-flies. For many years before, he was assisted by Jewish friends who encouraged the young man whom they had believed to be an inventor of promise. They helped him recuperate from a tubercular condition. He never repaid them—except with hate. He paraded through Yorkville's streets, palled around with congressmen, had his picture in the newspapers, and dreamed of becoming the fuhrer of a fascist United States. Hitler did it, why can't he? "See What I Mean?"

It is this "Hitler did it, why can't I?" that has driven on many of the persons now under indictment. It is these aspects of their character that this article has under discussion, rather than the more sinister political angles which have doubtlessly been well explored by the FBI and will be brought out at the trials.

Pelley Cocktail—Ghosts and Hate

Speak of frustrations! There is William Dudley Pelley. He was at one time a fairly success-

J. L. Teller, editor of the Independent Jewish Press Service, here gives some pen-portraits of some of the men indicted on charges of having conspired with the enemy to overthrow the Government of the United States of America and incite our troops to mutiny. The author devoted many years to the investigation of subversive activities and has first-hand knowledge of the men he here describes.

ful author of slick-magazine potboilers, formula-fiction, and even wrote for Hollywood.

But this puny little chap with pudgy, moist hands had dreams of grandeur. When his dreams did not come true, William Dudley Pelley began looking around and splashing in all sorts of muddy pools. He turned mystic, interpreter of the pyramid symbols, and spiritualist, and ended up a—Hitlerite, an out-and-out apologist for Nazi Germany. Visualizing himself as Hitler, he spoke of himself as THE CHIEF (always capitalized), the Americanized version of Der Fuehrer.

Pelley sported military shirts and Tom Brown belts, grew a goatee, and did all he could to camouflage his little frustrated soul and person and to emerge as a new personality—a little melodramatic, a mixture of the pot-boiler and the slick. His camouflage was always highly lucrative in a financial sense, always lucrative. United States fascism paid dividends. As a refrain, we might add that Chief Pelley, too, had his amours, and it was whispered by some that this was one of the ways which he obtained funds for his activities.

I met Mr. Pelley in the days when he was first beginning to shift from spiritualism to Nazism and to create his version of an American Valhalla. I saw him at what was to have been a secret meeting at Kreutzer Hall, a beer-tavern in Yorkville, in those days the Brown House of the Nazi movement in this country. The meeting was called in connection with the New York mayoralty campaign, and Pelley was then negotiating with what he had thought were the representatives of one of the candidates. That particular candidate, about whose friendship Pelley boasted, a boast never substantiated, lost his breath early in the running.

I also met Robert Edward Edmondson. He is the most pathetic of this motley, extremely dangerous lot. In those days his stuff was printed in a shop on New York's Washington Street, center of Arab nationalist propaganda. A tall, grizzly old man, Edmondson stood stooped over one of those high counter-tables at which proofs are read in old-fashioned print shops. His wife was there with him, assisting him in the preparation of copy for one of his virulent anti-Semitic pamphlets. While I interviewed him, he was interrupted several times by Teutonic and Slav gentlemen, some of whom I recognized from my jaunts in Yorkville as veterans of American Nazism, and some of whom were White Guard Russians and Nazi Ukrainians, as I gathered from their conversation with him. He was a pretty suspicious old gent and I had to deliver some rather glib talk and present some of the newest passwords of the Nazi front before he would talk to me and allow me to eavesdrop. At the time he faced a libel case in the New York courts for libelling the Jewish race. Nothing ever came of the case. I recall that I left with the impression that here was a psychoneurotic old man, believing fanatically in the hate he preached, and therefore so much more dangerous to his country. A man definitely associating with shady people, and indulging in activities which won him laurels from the Nazi center for anti-Semitic propaganda, the Weltdienst, World Service, with headquarters at Ehrfurt, Germany.

Ranting Ancients

In the same category as Edmondson, I would place Colonel Eugene Nelson Sanctuary. He, too, was one of the suspicious, psychoneurotic old men, and one of the extremely dangerous ones. Neither he nor Edmondson suffered privation as a result of their devotion to the anti-Semitic and pro-Nazi cause. I think this deserves emphasis. Anti-Semitism and Nazism and the deriding of democracy were lucrative and those who engaged in it could therefore well afford to make of it a full-time job. And as for their psychological make-up, it is typical of that of most Nazis and fascists. These are not movements of the well-balanced. These are movements of the inhibited, seeking release through hate and other delinquencies.

George Sylvester Viereck is the strangest bird in this menagerie. I remember him from the hearings of the McCormack-Dickstein Committee investigating un-American activities. There he was, neat, spick-and-span, cynical, the boulevardier, dilettante of politics and poetry, facing a group of honest, simple, unsophisticated Congressmen. He carried the day. Deftly evasive, provocative, satirical, when he left the hearing, the Nazi mob was milling outside the building, but not for him but for Gissibl and others of the "handsomes" of the anti-Semitic soapbox. Viereck eyed them contemptuously and the mob, in turn, cold-shouldered him. George Sylvester Viereck's vocabulary was not understandable to them, his wit was unappreciated. I thought that he was a lonely man, a miniature Mephisto, a frustrated poet (at one time he was considered one of the most promising younger poets), who had bartered talent for coin that would bring luxury. He was definitely an unpleasant sort of fellow to have for a neighbor, and an unpleasant addition to the American citizenry. He was an intellectual saboteur.

Lawrence Dennis has remained more or less a mystery figure in the picture of American fascism. Frankly fascist in his writing, he never sought the spotlight. He shied away from publicity. He was, however, the philosopher of the American brand of fascism. There was a striking resemblance between him and Viereck, except that Viereck, the publicity wizard, was out for the big earnings, while Dennis was a recluse.

Ernest Elmhurst of New York City, was a veteran habitue of Yorkville. His Nazism dates

"Wanted—A Salesman"

By S. B. KOMAIKO

WHEN Abe Robin reached the heart of "the old territory" the neighborhood where, as an immigrant, he had spent his young manhood, he thought of those hard days and the lovable unsere menschen who had given him shelter and food.

He remembered most vividly Mendel, the "melamed", with whom he had stayed the first two or three weeks after his arrival from the old country.

The house was the same.

When Robin knocked at the door, Minna, old Mendel's daughter, met him. She was very much surprised to see her rich landsman standing there.

"Tell me, Minna" he asked, "how is father? How is your mother, that Kosher soul? Are you married?"

"Thank God . . . married for five years now. My husband lost his job six months after our marriage but, thank God, now and then he finds a few days work. Thank God, Poppa and Momma are all right. They are both in the Old Home. They are very happy there. Now they bless the good people who provided a home for their old age."

"By the way," Robin inquired hastily, "how is your younger sister, Lena?"

"Well," Minna informed him, in a monotonous tone, "you know the old Jewish saying, 'God punishes those whom He loves.' Lena was married to a fine man, a painter by trade. Nu, one day he fell off the scaffold and . . . Lena was left a widow with two small children. But, thank God, the children are placed in the Orphan Home."

Robin had in mind to inquire of other members of the family but he was by this time in no mood to make further inquiries. He feared that it would reveal more unpleasantness. He wanted to be outside where he would breathe fresh and untroubled air again.

way back to the days of the Friends of New Germany, and of beer-guzzling in Kreutzer Hall. I saw him many times, but had only one actual encounter with him. That was during a visit to the New York City offices of the Nazi newspaper, the Deutscher Weckruf-und-Beobachter. I had come to interview Kuhn, in the days when Kuhn had lost some of his cheek and would no longer speak to reporters. Elmhurst was persistent in urging me not to see Mr. Kuhn, assuring me that the Chief was out. I was, nonetheless, persistent in waiting. Mr. Elmhurst called out in German and soon he and some of his goon-squad moved toward me. I saw their faces and dodged for the door. I saw their faces and visualized Berlin and Vienna. I shall see their faces again—behind prison bars. ©

Quickly he took out his pocketbook, withdrew a ten dollar bill and placed it on the table where Minna could see it, and prepared to leave.

"Abe, what are you doing?" Minna jumped to her feet. "You ought to know that the Mendels were never shnorrers! Thank God . . . we are getting along all right." And so saying she pushed the money into his reluctant hand.

S. B. KOMAIKO

When he passed Oransky's grocery store he could not decide whether or not to step in.

Partly on account of a distant relationship, and partly because there was activity in the store, which meant that the Oranskys were well, Robin dropped in.

"Hyman!" Mrs. Oransky called to her husband. "Take our gute gast right upstairs, and when I get through with the customers, I will come up too. Oi, what a guten gast!"

When Oransky and Robin were seated upstairs, in the very same front room where Robin had sipped so many glasses of tea in years gone by, Robin said:

"Well, Hyman, I see you are holding your own."

"You know what they say in Yanovo," Oransky replied with a soft smile. "Not all is gold that glitters," but thank God and thanks to the Women's Loan Society, in another few weeks all be well with us."

"What do you mean?" said Robin.

"It's like this," the grocer explained. "You know our customers are small people but long on credit. Naturally, we cannot meet our bills from the wholesale grocery house. One of their wise guys came to show us how to cut down on credit. Folg mir a gang, tell Mrs. Barsky, or Mrs. Minsk, 'No more.' People that were our customers when you, Abe, just came from the ship. So we couldn't cut them out. But the wholesale house cut us out. Oh, was that trouble. Well, the Loan Society made us a loan. Meanwhile times got better and we started to repay a little bit each week, without interest."

"Ooh! What a relief" Abe Robin said to his friend, Sol Tubin, when they met in the club. "I just came from the old neighborhood. Oh, what tzores they are having out there. What tzores, what tzores."

After Robin had related, in a sympathetic manner, the incidents of the day, he noticed that Sol took a small book out of his vest pocket.

"This book is not the Bible, but believe me, it contains the spirit of the Bible". As he spoke he turned the pages and finally said, "Abe, I'm surprised at you. I really am!"

"What's the matter," Robin asked in surprise.

"I don't find your name listed in this little book as a contributor to the Charities."

Robin said nothing. In his shame he didn't know what to say.

"Do you realize," Sol reprimanded him "that the very Old Home where the Mendels live in comfort is supported by the Charities? Yes, and Lena's orphans are being brought up and educated in a home that is likewise supported by our Charities."

"My God, Abe, do I have to tell you about the hospitals and all the other institutions which our charities support?"

"You read about our children appearing in the Juvenile Court. Well, the Charities is trying to prevent even this by supporting Jewish education and also making it possible for our children to get a religious training. As a matter of fact, Abe, I could spend months telling you of the great things that the Charities is doing for our community, but there is no time now; the boys are waiting to get the pinochle game started."

Abe Robin took out his check book and wrote one for the charities. While handing it to Sol he asked, "Tell me, Sol, how is business with you?" "Why do you ask?" Tubin came back with a question in response to a question in the old Jewish fashion.

"Well, I thought if things are not so ai-ai-ai with you"—Robin half stammered—"I could use you for a salesman."

LISTEN HERE . . .

The U. S. consulate in Mexico, granted visas to a delegation of Sinarquists to come to the United States some time ago . . . Shortly after this delegation's visit to Chicago, Mexican and Italian anti-Semitism became super-active in that city . . . It was the first time that those groups had come out into the open with agitation against the Jews . . . The Anti-Defamation League's report on anti-Semitic violence in New York hasn't scratched the surface . . . City Investigation Commissioner Herland's report is much more complete, but will never be published in full . . . Father George B. Ford, only Catholic priest scheduled to speak at last week's Carnegie Hall rally against anti-Semitism (a meeting sponsored by the Council against Intolerance), withdrew from the program at the last minute . . . Why? . . . Incidentally, we didn't like the slogan, "Keep anti-Semitism out of New York," under which the meeting was called . . . Why only New York? . . . Aren't we interested in the rest of the country? . . .

THIS AND THAT . . .

The fight between the American Jewish Conference and the Emergency Committee to save European Jews is only starting . . . Prominent editors of important American newspapers have pledged their support to the Committee . . . Benjamin Epstein of Winsted, Conn., left $1,500,000 in his will . . . An immigrant from Kiev who came to this country 50 years ago, he amassed his immense fortune in the junk business . . . Most of the money is to go to a brother and sister now in Nazi-occupied Poland . . . Too bad he didn't leave it for the rescue of Nazism's victims now . . . Money in an American bank cannot protect Epstein relatives from the Gestapo . . . When New York's East Side kibitzarne, the Cafe Royal, was in its heyday, a Broadway producer presented a play, called "Cafe Crown," based on life and characters in that famous landmark . . . Now the Cafe Royal is on the decline, with a new owner trying to revive it . . . So he has given the Cafe Royal a new name—Cafe Crown . . . Both names, we feel, are a bit out of date in these days of tottering thrones . . . Helen Hoskins, author and astrologer, predicts that Goering will replace Hitler in Nazi Germany and will attempt to convince the world that Germany has become decent again . . . The Nazi party, the lady prophesies, will last through 1945 . . . The fair crystal-gazer also prognosticates that Roosevelt will not be re-elected, and that Willkie will fade out of the political picture . . .

MAGNUM OPUS . . .

Congratulations to Dr. Isaac Landman, editor, and Louis Rittenberg, executive and literary editor, on the publication of the tenth and final volume of the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia . . . The completed Encyclopedia is a major achievement of which Landman and Rittenberg and their Board of Editors may well be proud . . . Particularly striking in Volume Ten is the colorful frontispiece by miniaturist Arthur Szyk, dedicated "To the Hallowed Memory of Europe's Martyred Jews" . . . If you've been putting off the acquisition of the Encyclopedia until all the volumes have been published, now's the time to see about getting your set . . . Need we add that every Jewish home should have the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia? . . .

WAR THEATRE

Sergeant Harry Horner of the U. S. Army, the late Max Reinhardt's pet scenic designer, has been sent to Hollywood under military orders, to do the sets for the movie version of "Winged Victory" . . . Chief Petty Officer Artie Shaw of the U. S. Navy spent a brief leave in New York not long ago . . . He was here just long enough to get acquainted with his six-month-old son, and to hear that Metronomo, the music magazine, had voted him "Musician of the Year" for 1943 . . . Broadway's Maurice Manson used to be considered a veritable wizard in make-up . . . He understudied eleven characters in the farce "Arsenic and Old Lace" because of his incredible knack for making himself look like any one under the sun—or spotlight, if you prefer . . . Now a sergeant in the U. S. Army, he has been assigned to working on rubber prostheses, making artificial noses, ears, etc., for those unfortunate soldiers who have been disfigured beyond help of plastic surgery . . .

ABOUT PEOPLE . . .

We are indebted to Walter Winchell for this neat if rather old Einstein anecdote . . . The late Mrs. Albert Einstein once visited the astronomical observatory atop Mount Wilson . . . She asked about the giant telescope there . . . "We use it," she was told, "to discover the shape of the universe" . . . "My husband," said the famed scientist's wife, "does the same thing with a pencil, on the back of an old envelope" . . . Samuel Segal is a veteran Zionist leader of New York . . . His name is known throughout the country, however, for he is the inventor of the famous Segal lock . . . As he was coming home late the other night he saw a policeman struggling valiantly to open a house door for a drunk who had lost his key . . . Sam Segal looked at the lock, and, after determining that it was not a Segal lock, proceeded to pick it open . . . "Wish I could pick the lock on the gates of Palestine," he mumbled to the bewildered cop . . .

Every patriotic American should see "Tomorrow the World." It is worth a volume of lectures, exhortations and explanations. Especially in a city such as Chicago, home of the defeatist appeaser press, it is a duty to our men in service to see that the play stays here until everyone has had a chance to see it.

The American Jewish Conference administers a well deserved spanking.

The Interim Committee of the A.J.C. representing the majority of American Jewry has performed a real service to the entire community by publicly denouncing the disruptive activities of the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe as "a series of fronts" whose leaders had "constantly assumed to speak for the Jewish people in the country without having or endeavoring to secure a mandate from any constituency" and whose activities have caused "discord resulting frequently in a disservice to the cause they had assumed to represent."

The Emergency Committee has issued a belligerent reply without, however, answering any of the charges raised by the Interim Committee. For example, the I. C. memorandum recalled the advertisement published by the Committee for a Jewish Army last February which implied that 70,000 Rumanian Jews could be saved at a cost of $50 a piece. Tens of thousands of dollars must have been thus collected. How many Rumanian Jews have been thus saved? Or take their attitude illustrated in the ads following the Moscow Conference written by Ben Hecht, that the leaders of the United Nations, Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, are not concerned with the plight of the European Jews. Is this a service to our cause—or to the defeatists who follow the same disruptive line.

The fact that very few, if any of the responsible Jewish leadership have associated themselves with the Emergency Committee is clear proof that they are not fooling the Jewish people. It is to be hoped, however, that the statement of the Jewish Conference that one of the "unfortunate and regrettable aspects" is that "many men and women of good will, moved by humanitarian sympathy with the plight of the Jews of Europe, have been misled into believing that these committees represented the Jewish people and have contributed to their support" will be seriously considered also by the non-Jewish members. It is increasingly clear that the motives of these Gentiles, in most cases, are of the highest—the earnest desire to save European Jewry from the clutches of Hitler. They are, however, not contributing to this end by associating themselves with a group which finds itself at odds with the main currents of Jewish life such as the American Jewish Conference which represents 64 national Jewish organizations, and every Jewish community in the country.

The beginning of anger is madness, the end, penitence.

Plain Talk

"All About a Card"

By AL SEGAL

My friend, Mrs. Jackson, showed me the best of all the collection of Christmas cards she received in the recent season. I hope it isn't an anachronism for me to speak of a Christmas card a month later. To be sure, I know as well as any one that the good will of Christmas has been buried till next December but it should be all right to speak of a Christmas card in a memorial way.

Mrs. Jackson has all kinds: Christmas cards with wintry scenes and cards with churchly embellishment such as stained glass windows, cards on which people have their own pictures printed, rather vulgarly, I think.

"And this one," Mrs. Jackson beamed. Her fingers touched the card preciously. Mrs. Jackson is a Christian lady who thinks it's about time something were being done to convert many of the Gentiles to Christian behavior. I don't know that Mrs. Jackson belongs to any church or has signed up for any creed but I certainly should call her Christian. Anyway her pleasure on account of this Christmas card suggested what a Christian lady she is.

"This card", she said, "is from Mr. and Mrs. Litchel of St. Louis."

As she looked at this card Mrs. Jackson could recognize the Litchels as close kinsmen in Christian feeling. The Litchels are Christian in the same way that Mrs. Jackson applies herself to Christian conduct.

It seems the Litchels had not been content to buy ready-made Christmas cards. Certainly, their card was not the ordinary card of commerce. The Christmas card manufacturers like to stick to the time-tried ways of expressing good will, and a Christmas card like the Litchels' was something almost revolutionary, you might say, as a good will expression. It had to do with Jews.

The Litchels, it appears, had come to the idea that it was a Christmas time in which to suggest that good will was not just a handshake to pass around among the Gentiles. The Gentiles had been behaving rather badly in the matter of Jews and it was about time to remind them that there were obligations of good will toward Jews, too. In fact, you might think that some of the Gentiles had had no benefits of Christian education.

It was not alone what Hitler had been doing to Jews. No respectable Gentile would have any association with Hitler, anyway. It was the dirty little cracks heard against Jews even among respectable Gentiles; small, filthy suspicions; vile little morsels of falsehood against Jews picked up from gutters and chewed and passed on for some one else to chew all over again.

Evidently the Litchels thought that Christmas was the time to show what they thought of that sort of thing. They planned a Christmas card and this was it.

There lay the Christ-child in His crib as on all other Christmas cards that commemorated the sacred crib. The crib stood just outside the door of the manger. But the manger was different from all the pictures of mangers that had ever been seen on Christmas cards before.

The Litchel manger was in the form of a large Star of David (the Mogen David); a Star of David built of wood. The Christ-child nestled underneath.

"I should say", Mrs. Jackson remarked, "there is nothing finer among the several billion cards that were printed and mailed around."

Mrs. Jackson's eyes kept glowing at the sight of it. Being the Christian lady she is, she had been carrying the implications of the card in her own mind right along. The Litchel card as much as said: "Look! This Child we celebrate today was of the Jews—a Jew! A child of the people whom some of us wrap all together in one bundle of our malice and hate. Perhaps we should remember this."

Mrs. Jackson could guess that the Litchels must have had something like a twinkle of divine comedy in their eyes as they sent out their cards. She thought at first it would have been perfectly grand if they could have had one of their Christmas cards in every mail box in the country the day before Christmas. She liked to think of startled citizens reaching into their mail boxes and coming upon the Christ child asleep under the Star of David and the Litchels as much as saying to one and all, "Merry Christmas and good will and peace in memory of this Jewish child."

In a single day the good will of the Litchels would have got around to all the mail boxes and everywhere people would have thanked God for the Litchels who know what good will really is.

But after Mrs. Jackson had let her mind gratefully dwell awhile upon a result so happy she began to think well, maybe no. Maybe it wouldn't have been such a good idea for the Litchels to have it get around to every mail box that Christ was a Jewish child with this Jewish star on Him.

What would the widely-known Mr. Zilch have said? Zilch might have had said to his wife look what I found in the mail box and what do you know about that? Just look at this. It turns out it was a Jewish manger and me always believing that Christ was a Christian like us. Those Jews certainly are slickers. They sure had me fooled about the manger being Christian.

Mrs. Zilch might have replied yes, that's the way it is with the Jews, they seem to have everything. They got all the banks and now it turns out the manger is theirs, too. Oscar, Christmas never will seem the same anymore to me with Christ being a Jew and the manger and all that.

If there were only one Zilch Mrs. Jackson wouldn't have felt so distressed to think of this; but there are so many Zilches. What would become of Christmas if it were spread around among them that it was a Jewish manger and the Christ-child was a Jew? The Zilches might all get mad at Christmas.

Mrs. Jackson treasures Christmas among the great values of mankind. It is one hour when Zilches feel kindly disposed and it would be awful if all the Zilches got mad at Christmas, she thought. She picked up the Litchels' Christmas card and hid it deeply in the recesses of her desk. "For the sake of Christmas" she explained. "So that no Zilch will ever see it."

THE MEANING OF CITIZENSHIP DISCUSSED AT JPI BY FIVE OUTSTANDING SPEAKERS

One of the most unusual and outstanding series of talks on the meaning of American citizenship will be heard in the auditorium of the Jewish People's Institute, 3500 Douglas Boulevard, for five consecutive Monday evenings, beginning January 31.

The five talks were especially arranged by the Education Committee of the Morale Division of the Chicago Metropolitan Area of the Office of Civilian Defense and is being jointly sponsored by Division 4 of OCD and the JPI.

Each of the five men chosen to speak in this course are widely known throughout the country for their original thinking. Following are the titles and speakers for the course: January 31—"The 'Duties of Man' in American Democracy," Earl S. Johnson, Assistant Professor of the Social Sciences, University of Chicago; February 7—"The Rights of Man in American Democracy," Louis Wirth, Professor of Sociology and Associate Dean of the Division of Social Sciences, University of Chicago; February 14—"The United States Citizen and His Government," William S. Stokes, Instructor of Political Science, Northwestern University; February 21—"The United States Citizen and Foreign Policy," J. Fred Rippy, Professor of American History, University of Chicago; February 28—"Citizen Participation in Post-War Planning," Charles E. Merriam, Morton D. Hull, Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus of Political Science, University of Chicago.

Admission to all of the talks is free. Educators, statesmen and Civilian Defense leaders agree that now more than ever before is there a need to understand the meaning of the power of American Citizenship. These talks will not be sermons in the sense that they will be inspirational without being instructive; each of the talks will bring to light ideas and advantages of American citizenship rarely thought of by the average American Citizen.

This is the opportunity for every citizen who wishes to see a better world follow this war to prepare himself for the role which he must play today and tomorrow.

WEIZMAN ASKS BEN GURION TO HEAD DELEGATION TO LONDON

London (JPS Palcor) — David ben Gurion, who recently resigned as chairman of the Executive of the Jewish Agency, has been invited by Dr. Chaim Weizman, president of the Agency, to head the delegation of Palestine members of the Executive going to London to discuss current political problems, your correspondent has learned. It is understood that among the problems to be discussed are those arising out of Mr. Ben Gurion's resignation.

Dr. Weizman, in his cable to Mr. Ben Gurion, expressed his desire that past controversies be disregarded in face of the vital issues confronting the Jewish people and the Yishuv. Mr. Ben Gurion, replying, expressed his appreciation of the invitation and declared that he agreed that "the problems of the future should be placed above the controversies of the past." He expressed the hope that members of the Executive going to London may succeed in their mission, but added that he himself was unable to leave Palestine for the time being.

NEW EVENING COURSE OFFERED
AT N. U. CHICAGO CAMPUS

A new evening course to prepare teachers for specialization in teaching the deaf and hard-of-hearing, and to offer a basic background to those who are interested in hearing problems, will be offered by the University College of Northwestern University on the Chicago campus, beginning February 9.

The new course, which will be taught by Raymond Carhart, associate professor of speech, will deal with types and degrees of hearing loss, testing procedures for discovering children with defective hearing, school activities for such children, and the educational use of hearing aids.

A total of 218 different evening courses in commerce, journalism, education, engineering, speech, and science will be offered the next semester on the downtown campus. Registration for evening courses will begin January 29.

JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER OF
HYDE PARK TO INSTALL RABBI
MORRIS MARGOLIES

Rabbi Morris Margolies will be installed as spiritual leader of the Jewish Community Center of Hyde Park at an Installation Banquet to be given in his honor on Sunday evening, January 30, at the Midland Hotel.

RABBI MORRIS MARGOLIES

Rabbi Margolies is a graduate of the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary and Yeshiva College of New York. He was an outstanding student at the Yeshiva, excelling both in scholarship and extra-curricular activities.

Born in Palestine, Rabbi Margolies came to the United States at the age of twelve. In this country he started afresh his preparatory studies for the rabbinate. He has deservedly achieved the reputation as an orator of considerable knowledge and experience.

The Center's new rabbi is the son of Rabbi Joseph M. Margolies of New York City. On the maternal side he is a direct descendant of the famed Rabbi Shuair Zalman of Ladi, author of the "Tanya" and "Shulchan Aruch." Rabbi Joseph Margolies is the former secretary of the World Mizrahi Organization.

Sylvan Wagner is chairman of the Installation Banquet, and Bernard Shulman will act as toastmaster of the evening. Rabbi Morris Teller of the South Side Hebrew Congregation will formally install the new rabbi. Rabbi and Mrs. Joseph M. Margolies will be the guests of honor at their son's installation.

RABBI JAMES WAX TO DISCUSS
JEWISH UNITY AT NORTH SHORE
CONGREGATION JAN. 23

"Jewish Unity: Can It Be Attained?" is the subject Rabbi James A. Wax has chosen for his sermon at the services of North Shore Congregation Israel on Sunday morning, January 23, 11 a. m.

A number of factors have conspired to disrupt the unity of American Jewry and to exaggerate the differences among Jewish people. In his talk Rabbi Wax will discuss some of the issues that have provoked the disunity and make certain suggestions towards minimizing the differences which now obtain.

On Saturday morning, January 22, at the 11 a. m. services the sermon text will be taken from the Scriptural portion of the week, Exodus Chapter VI.

The Temple is located at Lincoln and Vernon Avenues, Glencoe, and visitors are cordially welcome.

A. H. ROSENBERG HEADS JNF
CHICAGO COUNCIL

At the annual conference of the Jewish National Fund Council of Chicago, held Sunday, January 16, Sherman Hotel, A. H. Rosenberg was elected president of the council. Mr. Rosenberg is a past president of the Zionist Organization of Chicago and a former member of the executive of the Zionist Organization of America. The new president of the Jewish National Fund is a staunch advocate of practical Zionism, which is exemplified by Jewish National Fund that redeems land in Eretz Israel in the name of the Jewish people.

J.P.I. ESTABLISHES FOUNDATION
HONORING GOLDIE STONE

A foundation has been established at the Jewish People's Institute in honor of Mrs. Julius Stone's many years of service at the Institute. This Foundation will be known as the Goldie Stone Foundation and will be used to meet the many problems that are facing the youth of today.

It is the hope of the Foundation that year after year it may be able to stress a particular subject which may be uppermost in the minds of a large percentage of the young people with whom the Jewish People's Institute comes in contact. The Foundation will become a part of the regular service rendered by the Institute, of which Mrs. Stone was one of the founders. She has been and is continuing her active interest throughout the years.

The Foundation is being created by Mrs. Stone's close friends with the thought in mind that many of the Jews in Chicago by whom she is so beloved, will wish to join in making this a permanent and lasting tribute. Gifts to the Foundation will be accepted by Dr. Philip L. Seman, General Director of the Jewish People's Institute, or Mrs. Walter E. Heller, Chairman of the Foundation.

STUDENTS' GROUP OF COLLEGE OF JEWISH STUDIES HOLD
"MELAVAH MALKAH"

A symposium on the views and activities of the recently organized American Council for Judaism will feature the next "Melavah Malkah" of the Students' Organization of the College of Jewish Studies, on Saturday evening, January 22, in Bialik Hall, 220 S. State Street.

The speakers of the occasion will be Mordecai Krug, Dr. Nahum Zackai and Dr. Moses Zalesky. Expressions on the effect of the Council on American Jewish life will be offered by Rabbi Ralph Simon, Dr. H. Pomrenze, and Ruhama Shtiller. Anne Krupnick will lead community singing.

The committee of arrangements consists of Leah Perlstein, Robert Mendelsohn, Rachel Naodff, Esther Geller, Herman Graff and David Geller.

Moshe Pijade---Aide To Tito

By WILLIAM B. SAPHIRE

Moshe Pijade, Vice-President of General Tito's Partisan Government in Yugoslavia, has been for years a legendary figure in the Balkans. This legend is growing to international proportions. Independent Jewish Press Service staff writer William B. Saphire has interviewed scores of Yugoslav refugees in the United States, Jews and non-Jews, friends and opponents of Moshe Pijade's politics, and has gathered from them sufficient information for the following engrossing portrait of the scion of Moranos and Jewish merchant princes, who is one of the great leaders of the anti-Nazi army within occupied Europe.

—The Editor

The reports that filter in about Moshe Pijade are vague and come through roundabout sources. He is a Yugoslav Jew, the right-hand man of General Tito, leader of the Partisan armies; he is the vice-president of the newly established Partisan government, a government with its headquarters in the mountain fastnesses of Bosnia Hercegovina, and Montenegro. But what of Moshe Pijade's past? What is the background of this man who has suddenly emerged as a leader of forces powerful enough to engage ten Nazi divisions?

This correspondent has traced numerous leads. He has visited the Yugoslav colony in New York. He has spoken to refugees, recent travelers from the Balkan war zone and representatives of the Yugoslavian government-in-exile. Only scraps of information could be gathered.

"He is a very brilliant man," one person remarks. "I never met him, but my husband knew him quite well," answers a refugee from Belgrade. "Yes, I met Pijade once," says a well-known Yugoslav expatriate, "but I was so young at the time."

Such fragments and a blurred photograph out of an old Yugoslav newspaper are all the clues. Singly they are nothing, but put together with other information they begin to form a picture of the man and somewhat lift the veil of mystery which surrounds him.

Painter, Writer, Rebel

Moshe Pijade is the scion of a wealthy Spanish Jewish family who established their roots in the Balkans over three hundred years ago. The name of Pijade was well known and respected in the old Serbian state. They were a large family of successful merchants, but from them also sprang physicians, lawyers, and fighters. Moshe Pijade, perhaps the last of this clan, which has been uprooted by war, will probably perpetuate its name. Ironically enough, he was the black sheep of the Pijades, and spent most of his life out of contact with his family, and in a world far removed from the comfortable Balkan Jewish aristocracy.

Little is known of Moshe Pijade's youth. He was a student at the University of Belgrade and an excellent scholar, though the variety of courses that he took attests to an erratic nature. For a time he studied philosophy, then law, and later medicine. He took to writing, and also tried his hand at painting. His paintings were good, and even sold. He wrote articles for Belgrade papers and periodicals as a freelance journalist. He was a literary critic; he did a number of translations. Pijade might have become a well-known writer in Europe, but his affiliation with the Communist Party hampered him. For from his very youth he imbibed the culture of the revolution, associating almost entirely with the revolutionary element, chief of whom in the Balkans were the Marxists.

Facts about Pijade grow vague at about the outbreak of the first World War. What he did then is not definitely known. He may have been in the Serbian army, for the aspirations of that young state certainly appealed to him far more than the Austro-Hungarian ambitions. Being a University graduate he may even have been a Serbian officer. Some told me that as a fact, and said that he had distinguished himself for bravery. But the confirmation of such reports is lost in Balkan military archives.

Twenty Years in Prison

After the war Pijade's Leftist activities began anew. The Communist Party, which for a while had a voice in the newly formed Yugoslav state, was outlawed in 1924. Moshe Pijade was, at the time, acknowledged by all radical groups as one of their most brilliant leaders. Such favor in the eyes of the Communists met with disfavor in government circles. He was arrested and confined to prison. So began a period of two decades as a political prisoner.

By some means, even in prison, Pijade managed to keep in touch with his associates, and with events throughout the world. He secretly managed to get books, journals and writing material. Pijade worked in prison for the revolution just as he would have worked on the outside. Becoming interested in the Chinese revolutionary movement, he took up the study of Chinese. He translated Marx's "Das Kapital," and Wilde's "Picture of Dorian Gray," which bears witness to the many facets of his personality. For years he was the source of revolutionary literature circulating in the Balkan undergrounds.

Pijade during this period can be likened to his Spanish Jewish ancestors, Maranos, who centuries ago practiced their faith clandestinely in caverns under their homes in Seville and Granada. But such analogy can go on further. Pijade never practiced his faith. While never denying or trying to hide his origin, he proclaimed himself an internationalist. Many Jews of all classes probably admired him for his courage and brilliant mind, but viewed him as a troublemaker of whom the less heard the better.

According to one of the many stories about Pijade in prison, he was offered his freedom soon after his arrest if he would sign a pledge of loyalty to King Alexander. He emphatically rejected the offer. After serving twelve years as a political prisoner, Pijade was released. As the story has it, Pijade stepped from the prison gates singing the International. For this he was immediately re-arrested and interned for eight more years.

Chosen by Tito

How Pijade finally emerged from his cell in Belgrade no one here knows. Some say that he was pardoned just before the Nazi invasion. Others report that he broke out during a German air raid. No matter how, in the confusion that followed Yugoslavia's entry into war, Pijade made his way into the hills where the nucleus of General Broz's (Tito) Partisan band was forming.

General Tito was an active Communist who had fought in the Spanish prelude to the present war. Tito, a military man, and long an admirer of Pijade, required someone to weld his forces together. Pijade was the man. Acknowledged as their undisputed spiritual leader by the Communists, he also held the admiration and respect of all liberal elements in Yugoslavia who flocked to the Partisan army.

Today the fight goes on bitterly in the mist-covered Dalmatian hills, in the plains before Istria, in the rugged freezing Albanian Alps. The Partisans have created a new front which bleeds Nazi forces and threatens to open the way for the invasion of Southeastern Europe. The figures of Tito and Pijade appear as the driving force behind the whole movement. Pijade is by Tito's admission, the General's right-hand man. His actual activities today, as in the past, are cloaked in mystery. Does he lead troops and plan strategy? Is he the Partisan contact with British and Russian sources? What part will he play in the grand final invasion, and in the postwar Balkan diplomacy? Such questions are unanswerable.

At any rate, Pijade the internationalist, said to be a slight man with a sensitive artistic face and piercing brilliant eyes, has become one of the great legends of this war. Being a Jew by birth, he is another great figure in the ranks of Jewish heroes battling everywhere in occupied Europe. ©

CONFERENCE OF JEWISH WOMEN TO HOLD SYMPOSIUM AT JANUARY MEETING

Someday, perhaps long before we expect it, the war will end and the gigantic task of demobilizing our war economy will begin. The leaders of the constituent clubs of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations, together with the millions of other Americans, are naturally concerned about that day. How shall we throw the same energies into the reorganization of a peace time economy as we did into the conversion from peace to war? Because this subject is of vital importance, to the welfare of all of us, the Conference at its January meeting will present three plans. This meeting will be held Monday, January 24, at 1:15 p. m. in the club rooms. Mrs. David Wodlinger is program chairman and Mrs. Max Biesenthal is president.

RABBI MAX FELSHIN APPOINTED
NATIONAL CHAPLAIN OF JWV

Rabbi Max Felshin, who was commissioned 1st Lieutenant and Chaplain in the U. S. Army in the last World War, has been appointed National Chaplain of the Jewish War Veterans of the U. S. Rabbi Felshin has been notified of his appointment in an official communication from National Commander Archie Greenberg.

Rabbi Felshin, a graduate of Columbia University, was ordained in 1918, when he immediately volunteered for service with the Army during World War I. He graduated the Army Chaplains Candidate School at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky.; and was commissioned 1st Lieutenant and Chaplain. He also served with the A. E. F. in France, being attached to the 81st Division.

Rabbi Felshin is now Rabbi of the Radio City Synagogue of New York, and conducts weekly broadcasts over Station WEVD. He is the President of the Beth Din of America (Tribunal of American Rabbinate), and Chaplain for the State of New York at the Westfield State Farm, Bedford Hills, N. Y.

Rabbi Felshin is an executive member of many leading Jewish organizations of the country.

WAGNERIAN AND HINDEMITH MUSIC TO BE HEARD ON GM SYMPHONY SUNDAY

The music from two of Richard Wagner's greatest operas, "Lohengrin" and "Die Walkure," and a ballet work of the contemporary composer, Paul Hindemith, will be performed by the NBC Symphony Orchestra, under Leopold Stokowski's direction, on the General Motors Symphony of the Air program Sunday, January 23 (NBC 4 to 5 p. m., CWT).

From "Lohengrin," Stokowski will conduct the Prelude to Act 1. The second Wagnerian offering will be the magnificent "Magic Fire Music" from "Die Walkure," begun by the composer in 1854 and completed in 1856.

It was in Weimar, Germany, on August 28, 1850, that the first performance of "Lohengrin" was heard and it was this memorable performance, directed by Liszt, that dated the success of the Wagnerian movement in Germany. Wagner said of this premiere (and it is just as applicable to the first performances of every subsequent work of his), "Musicians had no objection to my dabbling in poetry—poets admitted my musical attainments; I have frequently been able to rouse the public; professional critics have always disparaged me."

Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione" (Exalted Vision), the concert version of the composer's ballet, "St. Francis," created in 1938 for the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, will be Stokowski's third offering. Hindemith is professor of composition at Yale University and his achievements in modern music have been enthusiastically accepted.

During the intermission period, a brief informal talk by Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors and directing head of its Research Laboratories, will be heard.

"New Note in American Intellectual Life"

Revel With Rebel

By REBEL CHRABLOW

There's lots to tell of people and places and things . . . Without further fuming and fussing for immortal words I'll begin right now on the who-what-where-when . . .

Last Wednesday night, January 12, I was among those present at the annual Jewish charities dinner and meeting at the Standard Club. We met Irv Bilow out in the hall—he's a swell guy and he sure was a big help to me. (How does it feel Irv to be on the other side of the fence? . . . Getting publicity . . . instead of giving it?)

Briefly noted were Mrs. Max Lowenberg making swift notes of the affair to write her husband, Captain Max Lowenberg—somewhere in England . . . Sam Haas brushed past us and we looked around and saw Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Plotkin. At a table a little ahead of me I could see Judge Hugo Friend. I saw my former chemistry teacher walk by, Peter Meyer and then I caught a fleeting glimpse of Mr. and Mrs. Max Grossman. Giving her complete attention to the speakers was Mrs. Joseph Stottow.

After the meeting I was lucky enough to capture Charles Weinfeld, Harris Perlstein, Peter Sampson and Mrs. Adolph R. Klein to give me their ideas on my question for the week: Do you think there will be much unemployment after the war? Mr. Weinfeld told me, "I feel this way about it. If they discharge the men returning home in groups after they have found employment for them we will not be confronted with an unemployment problem. In reply to the query, Mr. Sampson said, "I think there will be a transition period. But I hope that our industrial giants and the powers that be at Washington will be able to work it out." Mr. Perlstein submitted the following, "I think the American people have the ingenuity to lick unemployment after this war." Mrs. Klein said, "I don't think there will be unemployment for several years after the war."

A unique contribution to the war effort has been made by Sally Rabin Langert, whose song, "We Need More Women to Do It," has been dedicated to American women who are contributing their efforts towards winning the war. Lyrics and music were composed by Mrs. Langert and the song was sung by 3,000 volunteer war bond saleswomen who sang it at the large rally, staged by the Women's division of the Chicago and Cook County War Finance committee at the Stevens Hotel.

Ran up to see Dr. Ludwig Lewisohn last week. I wanted to hear all about his new book, "Breathe Upon These," which is scheduled to appear on February 23. This date marks the second anniversary of the Struma disaster. Dr. Lewisohn told me that when the fatal sinking first occurred he had wanted to write a story about it, but other work prevented his carrying this out. After a year and a half, he was finally able to work on it. The story is about a refugee who tells the story of the Struma to a group of American Christians. The title, "Breathe Upon These," is taken from the thirty-seventh chapter of Ezekiel. The passage from which the title is taken is quoted here:

"Thus saith the Lord God unto these bones: Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live; and I will lay sinews upon you and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you and ye shall live; and ye shall know that I am the Lord."

Sgt. Phil Stern, relates this incident to me. While Sgt. Stern was recuperating from wounds received in the North African campaign, a fellow patient remarked somewhat bitterly, "Women are just no good." He went on to explain, "Here I was engaged to this girl back in Iowa. We had all sort of plans for buying a farm and raising a family. She promised to wait for me and now I just get this letter that she ran off and married a sailor." Sgt. Stern sympathized with, "Don't feel so badly, buddy. A girl I went around with in Los Angeles is going around with Orson Welles." "Gee, that's tough," the fellow patient said, "I bet he's some lousey second looney in the quartermaster corps!"

Guess what newspaper the lady was reading, who was heard to remark at the conclusion of the dramatic, moving film, "North Star," "It's just like my husband says, everything is being exaggerated!"

A gift of $15,000 is being made by Max Karasik to the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at the University of Chicago, for the establishment of a Hillel House at the University as a memorial to his son, the late Raymond Karasik, U. S. Army Corps, who was killed in an operational flight.

Out of Yesterday . . . From the Society column of The Sentinel of February 4, 1911 . . . Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rothschild and Mr. and Mrs. Melville Rothschild sailed February 1 on the steamer Mauretania for London . . . Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Feilchenfeld and children of 5025 Grand Boulevard have left for an extended trip through Florida . . . February 11, 1911 . . . Lillian Kalich, a daughter of Mme. Bertha Kalich, will be a member of her mother's company in "The Kreutzer Sonata," which we are to see at the Lyric late this month.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK

Herman Struck

Haifa (JPS - Parlor)—Herman Struck, artist and member of the Central Committee of the World Mizrahi Organization, died here at the age of 68. He was a resident of the Mount Carmel district and came to Palestine in 1922. Mr. Struck was born in Berlin in 1876 and studied at the Berlin Academy of Art. He was considered one of the foremost graphic artists.

He was a member of the London Royal Society of Painters, Etchers and Engravers and was considered one of the greatest etchers of our time. His work is in many private collections and museums and he is the author of two books on engraving. His work showed the influence of Rembrandt and of Goya and, of more recent artists, of Whistler, Josef Israels and Liebermann. All his work shows a strong Jewish consciousness. The High Commissioner of Palestine, Sir Harold MacMichael was one of the purchasers of his paintings, and his work was sent to the United States for exhibition at the Palestine Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

Dr. Simon Ginzburg

New York (JPS)—Dr. Simon Ginzburg, Hebrew poet and scholar and managing editor of the Keren Hatarbut News, journal of the Hebrew Publication Society of Palestine and America, died here at the age of 53. He was born in the Volhynia district of Russia and came to this country in 1912. He studied at Teachers College, Columbia University, and at Dropsie College, Philadelphia, where he obtained a Ph.D. in 1923.

Dr. Ginzburg was the author of "The Life and Works of Moses Hayyim Luzzatto," the noted Italian Jewish poet and dramatist of the eighteenth century, in five volumes, and of several books of poetry. He was active both in Palestine and in this country in organizations devoted to the promotion of Hebrew writing and publications. He translated Coleridge's "Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner" into Hebrew.

Rabbi Marcus Friedlander

New York (JPS)—Rabbi Marcus Friedlander, rabbi emeritus of the Ninth Street Temple of Brooklyn and former associate editor of Jewish Progress and Emanuel of San Francisco, died at the age of 78. He was born in Germany and came here at the age of 18. He studied at the Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati and at the Jewish Theological Seminary here. He was a member of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, the Association of Reform Rabbis of New York and vicinity, the Zionist Organization of America and B'nai B'rith.

Meyer Goldberg

New York (JPS)—Meyer Goldberg, United Palestine Appeal director in the Bronx and a contributor to the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia, died at the age of 70. He came from Russia to this country in 1901.

DR. JUDAH ROSENTHAL JOINS COLLEGE OF JEWISH STUDIES FACULTY

Dr. Judah Rosenthal, formerly of Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning, Philadelphia, and the Jewish Scientific Institute, New York, has joined the faculty of the College of Jewish Studies, beginning with the Winter Quarter, 1944.

Dr. Rosenthal will teach in the Department of Bible and History, and will also serve as the Librarian of the College.

Dr. Judah Rosenthal received his education at the Academy for Higher Jewish Learning of Berlin, the Universities of Berlin and Leipzig, and is a graduate of the Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning. He has been associated with the Shoken Publishing House, Dropsie College, and the Jewish Scientific Institute of New York. His special field of interest has been in the field of Bible Exegesis. He has also published many monographs in some of the outstanding scholarly publications in Hebrew and in Yiddish.

Dr. Rosenthal will be greeted by faculty and students at the forthcoming Melaveh Malkah of the College of Jewish Studies, on Saturday evening, January 22.

BOARD OF JEWISH EDUCATION CELEBRATES 20th ANNIVERSARY

The Board of Jewish Education will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of its founding on Sunday, February 6, at the Standard Club, it was announced today. Mrs. Harry Berkman, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements for the celebration indicated that the program would consist of two sessions. The afternoon meeting at 3:30 will consist of a panel discussion on what the Central Agency for Jewish education has been, what it is and what it ought to be. There will also be exhibits by the music and dramatics departments of the Board of Jewish Education, on some of their activities.

The participants in the afternoon panel discussion will be: Rabbi Samuel Blumenfeld, Rabbi Felix Levy, Mrs. Michael H. Weinberg, Ralph M. Schwartzberg, Benjamin Harris. Professor Louis Gottschalk will act as moderator.

The evening session will begin at 6:30 with a dinner. The two featured speakers of the evening will be Rabbi James G. Heller of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Professor Richard Peter McKeon of the University of Chicago.

Rabbi Heller is President of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. He is co-Chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and of the United Palestine Appeal. He is also famous as a musician and composer and today writes the program notes for the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Professor McKeon is an outstanding scholar and author. He is Dean of the Division of Humanities at the University of Chicago and a Professor of Philosophy and Greek.

At the evening session, the Board of Jewish Education will also honor the memory of its first President, James Davis. Louis Cahn will be given a testimonial.

When the Board of Jewish Education was founded in 1923, there were ten schools affiliated with it, which reached approximately two thousand children. Today, there are sixty-three schools in the Board of Jewish Education system, and over thirteen thousand young people and adults benefit from the advantage of the centralized system of education, which has been developed. The Board of Jewish Education also conducts the College of Jewish Studies and two Hebrew High Schools. Dr. Leo L. Honor is Executive Director and Dr. Louis Gottschalk, Professor of History at the University of Chicago is the President of the Board of Jewish Education.

RABBI A. E. ABRAMOWITZ WILL ADDRESS STUDENT ASSEMBLY AT COE COLLEGE JAN. 27

Rabbi A. E. Abramowitz of the Albany Park Hebrew Congregation, a representative of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, is scheduled to address the student assembly at Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on January 27, according to an announcement made in Cincinnati, headquarters of the Society. Rabbi Abramowitz will speak on several topics, "National Ideals in the Bible", "The Romance of Modern Jewish Literature" and "The Story of Jewish Philosophy".

The Jewish Chautauqua Society, an educational organization, celebrating its Golden Anniversary, sends speakers to colleges and universities in all parts of the country to interest Jewish history, literature and philosophy from a non-propagandistic point of view.

Hebrew Theological College Launches $1,000,000 Endowment Fund Drive

Max Goldberg, Chairman of the Endowment Fund Committee, has issued an invitation to any reader of the Sentinel who might be interested in securing more information about the drive itself or the endowment plaque to contact him directly at Monroe 4051, or to phone Mr. Louis Ets Hokin, Secretary of the Endowment Fund Campaign, at Lafayette 7701.

MAX GOLDBERG

Jews cannot exist without Judaism. Such is the experience of our people in all ages and all lands. Wherever Jewish learning is neglected and Jewish religion runs thin, Jews are lost both to themselves and to their people. Nor do they command the respect of the world. It is the faithful and instructed Jew who is the best defense of his people's life and honor.

Good Jews cannot be ignorant Jews. Throughout our history the teacher and the scholar has given the people that knowledge which is life itself. Never more than in this age were such teachers and scholars needed; never was the necessity upon Jews so strong and so vital to support and nourish the teachers and the scholars who are needed as guide and light.

The Hebrew Theological College of Chicago can proudly point to those consecrated and learned men whom it has sent out as rabbis and teachers in Israel. More and more of these are needed to sustain, to instruct, to lead our people in this most difficult age.

It is upon these solid grounds that the Hebrew Theological College of Chicago appeals to the generous and loyal among our people, to all those who would proudly defend the citadel of Israel's faith and knowledge to give it active and unstinting assistance. The redemption of man, as our sages have it, rests upon the pure breath of the child and the student in the halls of learning. No cause is so dear to the Jews as this cause. Surely that has not changed. Surely all those who are concerned with the perpetuation of our people's life and integrity of spirit will respond to this appeal.

Good deeds should be commemorated. Hence upon a plaque of permanent bronze there will be inscribed the name of every donor and benefactor whose gift is one thousand dollars or above. Thus there will be known in the times to come the names of all those who in a difficult age supported the cause of Israel and who devoted a portion of their earthly possessions for the name's sake.

Talmedei ha-chachamin marbim shalom b'olam:

The disciples of the sages shall cause peace to be spread over the earth.

Good News For Asthma Sufferers

If you suffer from choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma, here is good news for you. A prescription called Mendaco perfected by a physician in his private practice contains ingredients which start circulating thru the blood within a very short time after the first dose, thus reaching the congested Bronchial tubes where it usually quickly helps liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. Fortunately Mendaco has now been made available to sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma thru all drug stores and has proved so helpful to so many thousands it is offered under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. JEWISH AGENCY ASKS 1½ BILLION

Nazis Deny Berlin Is "Judenrein"

Stockholm (JPS)—The fact that one no longer sees people on Berlin's streets wearing the yellow patch with the Shield of David, which Jews are required to wear by law, does not mean that there aren't any Jews left in the German capital, a high Nazi official declared to the Berlin correspondent of the Svenska Dagebladet, a newspaper published in this city.

The correspondent had asked the Nazi official whether the absence of Shield of David wearers from the streets of Berlin would indicate that the capital was "Judenrein." The Nazi replied that it only indicated that the Jews are violating the law. "At the moment," the official said, "we have more important business on hand, but the violators will be apprehended and severely punished when we turn our attention to them."

Some observers say that this statement may perhaps indicate a Nazi attempt to backtrack on their former boasts that they were making Western Europe "Judenrein."

Rise of Anti-Jewish Terror in France

London (JPS)—Reports reaching here from France indicate an acceleration of the campaign of anti-Jewish terror waged by the Nazis and their Vichy satellites. The new outrages are traced to Joseph Darnard, recently appointed by Pierre Laval to head the Ministry for Jewish Affairs. His special police is reported murdering Jews in the course of house-searches and looting their valuables.

Among those murdered by Darnard's police are Victor Basch, 80, former president of the League of Human Rights, and his wife, and Rene Bloch, former Vice-President of the French Institute of Scientific Research, and his 25-year-old son.

Basch, a native of Budapest and educated in Paris, was one of many Jewish intellectuals, who as a result of the Dreyfus affair, began to take an interest in Jewish problems. He was active in The Alliance Israelite Universelle, an international Jewish organization with headquarters in Paris, and toured Russia and Rumania on a mission for the Alliance, before the first World War. He also paid a visit to the United States, where he conferred with Jewish leaders on relief for the Jews of Eastern Europe.

Twenty thousand French Jews exiled from the Riviera, have been deported to labor and concentration camps in Poland. Among them are the Parisian Yiddish writers Veviorka, Aromson, Moses Blank, B. Resnick Berson, and Dimant. An additional 15,000 Jews removed from the French Riviera are still interned at Drancy camp near Paris.

The Journal de Geneve reports a Nazi round-up of the entire Jewish male population of the Grenoble district. The arrested were sent off to "unknown destinations," which generally implies forced labor camps or death-centers in Poland.

Comprehensive Postwar Program Planned by Jewish Agency for Palestine

Jerusalem (JPS Palcor)—A comprehensive Jewish Agency scheme for the postwar "solution of the Jewish question through immigration and settlement in Palestine," calls for expenditure of 400 to 450 million pounds (over a billion and a half dollars), of which a third is to be Jewish national capital, while the remainder is to be mobilized "internationally, either through reparations for looted Jewish property or contributions by Allied governments in the manner of lend-lease," it was announced by Eliezer Kaplan, treasurer of the Jewish Agency, in an address at the session of the National Council of Mapai (Palestine Jewish Labor Party).

The solution the Agency envisions can be brought about under an "appropriate regime" in Palestine and with the joint effort of "international capital and Jewish organizing action," Mr. Kaplan stressed.

Emphasizing that the Jewish Agency scheme has taken into consideration the stress and trials of the transition period from war to peace economy, he said that "for Palestine the transition period began with the recession of the war from its borders," because, of the 140,000 workers of Jewish Palestine, a large proportion were until recently employed on military projects, having left other employment to assist in the war effort. The termination of the army works projects, he said, is "likely to engender the unemployment of thousands of workers, apart from newcomers, and this would constitute not only a grave social and economic problem, but also a political menace during the transition period before the political conditions will have been clarified."

The Jewish Agency budget for the current fiscal year is over two million pounds, Mr. Kaplan said, which includes "a half million for the needs of the transitory period." Another million and a half pounds for the transitory period will have to be mobilized within Palestine, he said, "but even this is not considered sufficient to meet the needs and efforts are proceeding to marshal further resources both in Palestine and abroad."

Industrial Expansion Overseas

After outlining the difficulties, Mr. Kaplan went into a detailed discussion of the Jewish Agency scheme. "There are prospects," he reported, "that it will be possible after the war not only to maintain our existing industry, but even expand it overseas." Referring to the "competitive capacity" of Jewish Palestine, he said, that would depend entirely "upon raising the standards of quality of the individual output without lowering the wage levels."

He announced that "industrial credit institutions and export companies are being planned and all steps are taken to encourage fresh initiative. Delegates will be sent abroad to explore new export markets." He said that one of the troublesome problems is "obtaining raw materials and machinery, a problem which is greatly dependent on international marketing arrangements." To handle these conditions, the Jewish Agency is now preparing to "establish offices in the Middle East, London and Washington and to create proper media for this within Palestine."

Mowrer Issues Warning To U.S. on Palestine Issue

New York (JPS)—The controversy on British policy in Palestine "involves the United States legally and emotionally," and "watch lest it become explosive," is the warning issued by former foreign correspondent Edgar Ansel Mowrer in his syndicated column in the New York Post. Discussing British charges of "inherent hostility" between Jews and Arabs, Mr. Mowrer says: "The real question is, were the British in Palestine to act as 'umpire' between Arabs and Jews or to help establish a Jewish Commonwealth, as Winston Churchill once stated?"

Referring to a statement made by Aubrey Morgan of the British Information Service in a letter to him that "even now there are more immigration certificates available than there are Jews able to take them up," Mr. Mowrer points out that "yet these certificates were not used for the 765 refugees of the Struma; for those of the S. S. Patria, which sank in Haifa Harbor while taking on Jews whom the British were deporting from Palestine; for the 1,500 Jews who were deported from Palestine to Mauritius Island, and for several thousand more who might have escaped from Nazi-dominated Europe had they been sure of a welcome."

Mystery Enshrouds Fate of Jews in Transnistria

New York (JPS)—The resettlement of Jews in Bessarabia and Bukhovina by the Rumanian government has been postponed until January 25th, according to a broadcast by the Nazi-controlled Budapest radio and picked up here by the Columbia Broadcasting System. It is believed that this refers to the surviving Jews in Transnistria about whom so many conflicting stories have been current. Originally 200,000 were said to have been transported to Transnistria, but latest reports state that there are less than 80,000 surviving. Their fate is unknown.

On the severance of Transjordan from the rest of Palestine, Mr. Mowrer poses the question: "What gave the mandatory power the right to exclude Jews from the major part of the promised territory as a gesture of appeasement to the Arabs?"

Mr. Mowrer concludes that "many people believe that Britain's objective is the establishment of an Arab Federation under British auspices, that the Jews in Palestine are a complicating factor and that this, together with the expediency policy of 1939, led to the White Paper limitations of further Jewish settlement in Palestine."

Beth Israel Begins Principles Campaign

Houston, Texas (JPS)—Reform Congregation Beth Israel of this city, under fire for its "basic principles" which bar from voting membership all who adhere to kashruth and subscribe to the belief that the Jews are a nation, has now begun a mail campaign among Reform congregations in the United States in an effort to explain its position. Leopold L. Meyer, president of the Congregation, announced that printed copies of the "critical resolutions" have been sent "to the rabbis, officers and trustees of the 300 Reform Congregations in the United States."

The resolutions and the "basic principles" were adopted by the membership of Congregation Beth Israel last November 23rd. The resolutions criticize the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, central body of Reform congregations, for "the recurring and constant compromises of the principles of Reform Judaism," as evidenced by "failure of the delegates representing the Union" at the American Jewish Conference to "publicly announce a dissent from the Palestine resolution." The resolutions call for a "thorough investigation" of all departments of the Union, and attacks the Central Conference of American Rabbis, central body of the Reform rabbinate in the United States, for adopting a resolution declaring that "there is no essential incompatibility between Reform Judaism and Zionism." The resolutions also call for an investigation of the curriculum, requirements and personnel of the Hebrew Union College to ascertain why "an overwhelming preponderance of graduates" allegedly have in recent years "sought little expansion of the historic principles of Reform Judaism." The resolutions also assert that "a profound knowledge of Hebrew has never been a cardinal tenet of Reform Judaism" and criticizes the College for putting emphasis on Hebrew.

The story of the "basic principles" was reported by the Independent Jewish Press Service immediately after their adoption by the Board of Directors and prior to their adoption by the Congregation.

25,000 JEWS IN CONCENTRATION CAMPS IN ITALY

New York (JPS)—Since December 1st, 25,000 Jews have been sent to concentration camps in occupied Italy, it is reported from Portugal by the United Press. The same report states that there are still 45,000 anti-Nazi Italians hiding in the cellars of German-occupied Rome, despite Nazi attempts to ferret them out by controlling ration cards. Those in hiding are believed to be chiefly Italian officers and soldiers in Rome at the time of the armistice. Many Jews are believed to be hiding in Rome.

BAN HATE ACTIVITIES OF N. Y. COPS

New Regulations for Police Department Issued by Police Commissioner Valentine

New York (JPS) — New regulations for the Police Department have been announced by Police Commissioner Valentine in an attempt to stamp out subversive influences in the police force. Meanwhile incidents in increasing numbers of police laxity or even of sympathy for the anti-Semitic vandals are being reported in the metropolitan press.

The new police regulations state that members of the department "shall not knowingly associate . . . with any person or persons interested in or connected with any group or organization advocating or instrumental in creating . . . prejudice or oppression against any racial or religious group residing in the U. S. A. . . ."

The new rules also state that a member of the force "shall not knowingly write, print, copy, distribute, transport, store or possess" any literature "containing any defamatory or false statements which tend to expose any person . . . to hatred, contempt, ridicule or obloquy because of race or religion . . . nor shall such member aid or assist any person . . . to disseminate, distribute, store, print or write such literature. . . ."

Patrolman James L. Drew, who was recently reinstated in his post in a Jewish section of Brooklyn by Police Commissioner Valentine, was accused of actions which are now banned in the new regulations. A special board appointed by Mayor LaGuardia to review the case upheld Commissioner Valentine's action.

Drew was accused of using his home as a warehouse for anti-Semitic literature, and of consorting with Joe McWilliams, now under indictment on charges of inciting to mutiny among the armed forces of the United States and of conspiring with the Nazis.

Statements by Congress, Committee

The decision of the Mayor's three-man board of review is not a vindication of Drew, Carl Sherman, former State Attorney General and chairman of the American Jewish Congress Commission to Combat Anti-Semitism, pointed out.

It is merely limited, he said, to an opinion that on the basis of the record, Commissioner Valentine had not exceeded his powers in exonerating the policeman accused of dealing with the indicted anti-Semite Joe McWilliams and other un-American individuals and groups.

Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, addressed a letter to Mayor LaGuardia urging that whatever program is adopted as a result of Commissioner of Investigation Herland's report, be initiated without delay. Judge Proskauer stated that the incidents disclosed in Herland's report "bear every evidence of having been inspired by the type of propaganda originated in Germany and which the Nazis used consistently to 'divide and conquer' every democratic nation."

The head of the American Jewish Committee, in a radio address, warned of what would be ahead in the post-war readjustment period when all of the strains and stresses of the return to peacetime living "will create a more fertile soil for the seeds of dissension." Mr. Proskauer urged greater home front solidarity and a pledge to be taken by everyone to "spread no rumor and slander against any sect."

Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, head of the Catholic hierarchy of New York, wrote the following letter to Mr. Proskauer: "I heard your statement on the radio tonight and I congratulate you on it. I trust your noble efforts to be helpful in overcoming religious and racial animosities will bear fruit and will promote mutual respect, understanding and tolerance among all groups of Americans."

Van Loon Recommends "Beating" for Vandals

The way to handle the anti-Semitic situation on the streets of New York and other cities where attacks have been rampant is to use strong arm methods, it was stated by Hendrik Willem van Loon, noted historian and biographer. Mr. Van Loon, who is a prominent Protestant layman, suggests that "some of our Jewish prize fighter boys take a few nocturnal walks in those dangerous neighborhoods and let themselves be attacked and then lick hell out of the attackers."

Offer Legal Aid to Victims

Members of the National Lawyers Guild, in co-operation with the National Committee to Combat Anti-Semitism, have agreed to represent any person affected by any act of anti-Semitism throughout the United States, it was announced in a joint statement issued by Leonard E. Golditch, acting secretary of the National Committee to Combat Anti-Semitism, and Martin Popper, executive secretary of the Guild.

U. S. Court of Appeals Upholds Viereck Sentence

New York (JPS)—The conviction of George Sylvester Viereck for failing to comply with regulations requiring that he register as an agent of the German government, was upheld by the United States Court of Appeals. Viereck was sentenced to serve from one to five years behind bars.

N. Y. Anti-Semitic Acts Laid to Propaganda

New York (JPS)—The acts of anti-Semitic violence on the streets of New York City are the products of propaganda and indoctrination emanating from organizations such as Father Coughlin's Christian Front and Joe McWilliams' Christian Mobilizers. This is the conclusion of a 170-page report submitted by New York City's Commissioner of Investigation William B. Herlands to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia on anti-Semitic disturbances in the city. The report took a year to prepare.

The recommendations of Mr. Herlands, stressing the importance of more effective police action, are viewed as a criticism of the attitude of the Police Department which has attempted to lump together all the anti-Semitic outbreaks as ordinary mischief and juvenile delinquency.

In a statement pointing out the similarity between the New York outbreaks and the anti-Semitic attacks in Boston. Mr. Herlands also draws a parallel between his finding of laxity in the New York police and Attorney General of Massachusetts Bushnell's report that the Boston Police Department failed to investigate cases thoroughly and was guilty of laxity.

Although Mr. Herlands does not believe that there has been any "conspiracy or organized plan" he does not state that "such acts, however, are not accidental, or fortuitous, and they are more than juvenile delinquency in the ordinary sense."

USSR Radio Urges Ghetto Jews to Flee

New York (JPS)—The Soviet radio, broadcasting in Yiddish from Kiev, has called on the Jews in Poland to escape to the forests and await there the liberating Red Army forces. The radio advised: "Jews in concentration camps, Jews still alive in ghettos escape! Go to the forests and await the arrival of the Red Army. Jews working in labor camps should not try to escape to the Red Army on the roads. Go to the partisans. It is impossible to cross the front line—wait in the forests."

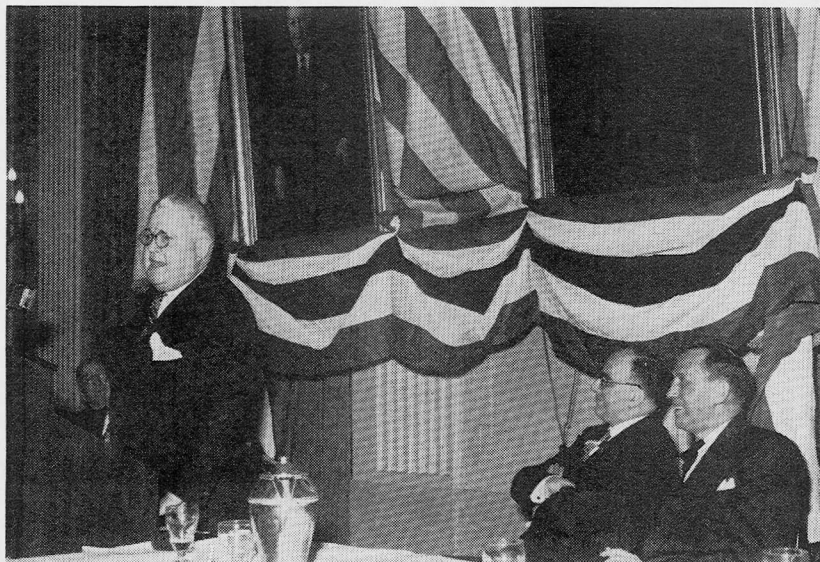

"Partisans picking up this message: Pass on the news to labor camps. The hour of liberation is approaching."

This report was cabled from Jerusalem by Richard Mowrer, New York Post and Chicago Daily News correspondent.

President Endorses Brotherhood Week

New York (JPS)—A special message from the White House in which President Roosevelt calls upon all Americans to take a part in the observance of Brotherhood Week, February 20th-26th, was made public by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in its announcement of the eleventh annual observance of that celebration. More than 3,000 communities are organized to participate in this event in which schools, churches, civic organizations, business groups and trade unions are co-operating.

JEWISH CHARITIES LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN FOR $650,000

Harris Perlstein, President of The Jewish Charities, and Peter Sampson, General Chairman of the 1944 Campaign, are evidently enjoying the address by Mark Anthony Brown, on the occasion of The Charities' 44th Annual Meeting and Campaign Opening, Wednesday evening, January 12th. The Jewish Charities has a total budget of $1,775,000 for 1944, and this $650,000 is needed to cover the anticipated deficit in that budget.
